But, he said, in response to repeated questions from Chairman Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina of the senate unemployment committee, the company's surplus of $450,000,000 could not be used to keep men at work and avoid the recent layoff of 30,000 men. For, he added, in times such as these it is "better" to work off accumulations of unsold stocks by curtailing production, than by adjusting prices downward in accordance with reduced demand. In addition, he made it evident that he thought little good could come from President Roosevelt's proposal that industry and gov-ernment get together periodically to gauge the future and plan pro-

'Drake's Drum' Saved as Flames Destroy Abbey

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Jan. 6.—(P) the famous "Drake's Drum" which superstitious legend says rolls whenever danger threatens England was saved today when fire consumed timbered Buckland Abbey, once the residence of Sir Francis Drake.

Occupants of the abbey fled be-fore the roof crashed in flames. Paintings, china and other price-less relics of Elizabethan days were destroyed.

"Drake's Drum" was used to sound the warning of the Spanish armada's approach to England's shores in 1588. It has been heard several times since-according to the legend.

The last time was after the World War when it was aboard the battleship Royal Oak. Sailors said they heard the strange, inex-plicable rumbling during a tense period of waiting before the Ger-man fleet came into sight to surrender at Scapa Flow.

A copy of the drum was pre-sented to the cruiser Devonshire, but superstitious sailors felt that it brought bad luck. The copy now is in the chapel of the royal naval

Only a few of Buckland Abbey's ancient treasures were saved from the fire. The origin of the blaze was not determined.

He will speak on development of the poultry industry at Pine mountain valley. Other speakers will be Dr. Charles D. Murphy, president of the association, and Irving DeGaris, according to an announcement by F. E. Radensleben, secretary-treasurer.

Insects damage about 5 per cent of the stored grain and milled products in this country, a loss of $250,000,000 a year.

Citizens of Decatur Seek Rotary Charter

Application for a Rotary Inremational charter was made yesterday by a group of Decatur citizens who organized a provisional club with Dr. Samuel Guy as president.

Other officers selected were

J. Howell Green, vice president; James W. Battle, secredent; James W. Battle, secre-tary-treasurer; Leon Hollings-worth, sergeant-at-arms; Wayne Leary, Hamilton Ansley, Philip Davidson and Harry G. John-son, directors. There will be 24 charter members, Dr. Guy said.

This mixed grill made with a juicy ham steak, cauliflower flowerettes, sweet potatoes and pineapple slices simply melts in one's mouth. Those who love good things to eat enthusiastically acclaim the advent of this new type of ham which is so tender you cut it with a fork.

A request for $214,000,000 for grants to states for old-age assistance was based on an expectation.

Assistant Attorney General Rob-ert H. Jackson, the government's chief denouncer of monopoly, and the industrialist, Wendell L. Will-kie, head of the vast Commonwealth and Southern Utilities Corporation, put forward their sharp-ly divergent views in a national forum-"America's Town Meeting

During the speeches of both, and during a subsequent period in which members of the audience were allowed to ask ques-tions, there were occasional loud expressions of displeasure, disagreement and agreement.

As Jackson ended his address

there were scattered boos, mixed with applause. Applause was heard at the end of the Willkie talk, but no discernible boos. Asked whether he thought it "fair" for the government to "sub- OPPOSITION IS SHOWN sidize" municipal power plants in TO HOUSING BILL competition with private plants,

THE SOUTH IN A TRUE LIGHT

There has been, of late, so much critical misinformation about the south published in some national magazines that when a fair and unbiased article dealing with conditions of life and with the people of the south appears, there is certain to be a generally appreciative reaction in this section.

In the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post appears an article by Stanley High titled "A Kind Word for the South." While Mr. High does not fail to mention in his writing unfavorable conditions that exist in the south, he balances this with a full detailization of the advantages of the section and the good characteristics of southern people.

"I do not know," writes Mr. High, "of any other place where, if I lost my shirt, I would be likely so soon to be given another, or in which I could drum up less support for a movement to underwrite my shirt bill on a permanent basis. Times and conditions being what they are, that is too bad. It leaves the south's status quo about where it was. But it leaves the southerner at least a notch or two above the evils which he has not remedied."

Mr. High points out how much better living is in the south, at much less cost, than in many other sections, and thoroughly refutes charges of exploitation of working groups by their employers. He visited many typical southern textile mill villages in the course of his survey and found employment and living conditions far better than among textile workers of the

The Saturday Evening Post has a circulation each week that averages more than 3,000,-000. Its influence is acknowledged by everyone. It is noted for the reliability and conservatism of its articles, a conservatism that adds tremendously to their effect upon public thought.

Such a reasonable and fair discussion of the south as this by Mr. High in a publication that stands at the top of its field, will arouse the appreciation of all southerners who, rightly or wrongly, love the south and take pride in that very conservatism that offlimes arou criticism, based upon envy, of constitutionally dissatisfied radicals.

THE DAIRY AMENDMENTS

There is every indication that, unless the so-called "dairy amendments" are stricken from the senate and house farm bills by the conference committee now striving to reconcile differences between the two, the southern delegations in congress will vote against the farm hill as a whole

If they do, the charge of "sectionalism" cannot be truthfully made. It is not sectionalism when men rise to defend their own people against palpable injustice. The only sectionalism charge which could possibly hold water in this instance, must be leveled against the midwestern dairy states which, in their greed. are striving to shackle the southern farmer and hold him forever as an economic serf to the dairy, poultry and livestock interests of the

The two amendments, sponsored in the senate by Senator McNary, Republican, of Oregon, and in the house by Representative Boileau, Progressive, of Wisconsin, would withhold all soil conservation benefits from southern farmers who used acreage taken out of cotton production for the raising of beef or dairy cattle, hogs or for poultry, or for growing any feeds for them.

Thus all initiative, all hopes for better farm conditions by diversification of products, would be taken from the southern farmer by federal fiat. He would be restricted as to the amount of cotton he could raise and forbidden to substitute for the unplanted cotton, practically every other farm crop suitable to this section. He would be compelled either to let his former cotton acres lie idle or turn them into woodland for the growing of pine.

The argument advanced by the proponents of the two amendments is that they are designed to protect dairy and poultry farmers of the west from future competition from the south. In other words, the west would forever be the purveyor of these profitable crops and the south must forever be the purchaser. The proposal is, as Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said, so cruel and illogical that it is enough to "make a man mad enough to swear."

Certainly the entire nation should not condemn, but should applaud all southern representatives in congress who have the courage to vote against any farm bill whatsoever, rather than cast their ballots in favor of such a scheme to forge new chains of economic slavery on southern agriculture.

A New Jersey genius claims to have found a means to remove shine from a blue serge suit without resigning from the public service.

The ten biggest news stories of the year have been named. Now for the scoops—headed by Stalin's victory statement twenty-four hours before the balloting.

"The universities," continues Dr. Butler sadly, "are in a state of coma." Good old coma state-we know its campus well.

THE BURGIN HOME RULE BILL

Senator Joe Burgin, of Buena Vista, has devoted a large part of his time and energy during the years he has been a valuable member of one house or the other of the Georgia general assembly to what has become known as the "Burgin home rule bill."

If ever there was a badly needed piece of legislation before the state assembly, this is it. It provides that strictly local matters may be decided by the counties themselves, thus relieving the legislature of the tremendous burden of "local bills," which clutter the calendar at every session. These bills are of absolutely no interest, 99 times out of 100, to anyone save the citizens of the county concerned. They are passed automatically when the representatives from that particular county agree and request their enactment.

The Burgin bill has been passed numerous times by either the senate or the house, but so far has never reached final enactment through the approval of both houses during the same legislative term.

At this session, it has been overwhelmingly approved by the senate and is now awaiting action by the house.

Passage of this bill would not only result in great savings to the taxpayers of the state, but it would double the time available for legislative discussion and action on bills of statewide interest. It would do away with a large part of the confusion which now makes the legislative burden so heavy and it would simplify the affairs of each individual county.

These "local bills" are not properly matters for the concern of the general assembly. This is proven by the fact that the assembly, even now, devotes no concern to them, merely putting them through the automatic routine which pushes them on to passage with but few knowing their content except the members from the particular county affected.

PLANNING FOR THE SOUTHEAST

On Tuesday and Wednesday next the third Southeastern Planning Conference will be held in Atlanta. Representatives from six states will attend, as well as officials of other planning agencies, state and federal. Leaders in the field of planning from all over the nation are on the program as speakers.

The potentiality for future good in such a conference is unlimited. The southeast today, in many respects, stands on the threshold of a tremendous expansion in industrial, agricultural and other activities. With new industries turning toward this section almost daily, with the rapidly expanding paper pulp industry, it is vitally important that the southeast plan its future growth today. Tomorrow, when the looming developments are accomplished fact, may be too late. The southeast must plan now to avoid mistakes that older and more fully developed sections made in the past and which they now wish, in vain, could be un-

In the paper pulp field alone there is urgent need for a full understanding of the present and future forest resources of the section. The National Forest Service, with the co-operation of state and other forest interests, is now engaged in a complete survey of forest resources in the south. When that survey is completed the information will be invaluable, if it is used. Proper usage of the survey facts will result in strict regulation of forest harvesting, will prohibit the crime of "clear cutting." and will safeguard the timberlands as a constantly growing source of permanent wealth for the future generations.

In other lines, planning is equally impor-

Thus the tremendously vital significance of the planning conference to be held in Atlanta is partly realized. From the deliberations that take place here, may come plans that will mean prosperity undreamed for the southeast of the years to come.

A western daily tried going without a society page, but soon quit. Subscribers with children at college had no way of telling when the boys were home.

RADIO DIPLOMACY

(From the Baltimore Sun.)
The Near East and to a lesser extent northern Africa have for a year or more been deluged with pro-Italian propaganda, most of it coming over In part the propaganda is addressed to the French colonies, but in far greater measure it seeks to reach the natives in the British posses-

Pro-Italian agitation is not, of course, fined to the radio. Native publicists have been subsidized to write articles favorable to Rome. Italian teachers have somehow found employment in native schools, where they are, according to the accounts of neutral observers, ardently working for their country's cause. Recently Arab terrorist gangs operating in Palestine have been discovered to be drawing "monthly salaries from a mysterious source.' The same dispatch from Jerusa that told of this discovery also declared that the disturbed conditions in Palestine "are no longer the result of an existing Arab-Jewish problem but r are due chiefly to an organized campaign by Mussolini against Great Britain." The British government has for months been seeking to halt this campaign, but it has been working quietly through diplomatic channels, for it has not wanted to make an international issue out of the matter. The word now comes from London that the British are prepared to discard this method as useless and have decided to fight fire with fire. Soon after the first of the year, as Mr. Paul Ward pointed out the other day in a dispatch from London, the British Broadcasting Corporation will initiate a series of "news" and "educational" programs in Arabic, Portuguese and Spanish. Officially it is denied that these programs will contain anything that can be regarded as propaganda. Yet it is admitted that their purpose is to offset the Italian radio propaganda.

This business of conducting diplomacy by wireless is not especially new. In the last decade or so the radio has, in Europe at least, become one of the chief instruments of diplomacy, particularly among the totalitarian states. It is yet to be seen, however, whether this method is superior to old-fashioned diplomacy in dealing with international problems.

Third Term Sentiment Declines, FAIR ENOUGH The Honest Light of Day America Speaks' Poll Discloses

THE SOUTH IN A TRUE LIGHT

There has been, of late, so much critical misinformation about the south published in some national magazines that when a fair and unbiased article dealing with conditions of life and with the people of the south appears, there is certain to be a generally appreciative reaction in this section.

In the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post appears an article by Stanley High titled "A Kind Word for the South." While Mr. High does not fail to mention in his writing unfavorable conditions that exist in the south, he balances this with a full detailization of the advantages of the section and the good characteristics of southern people.

"I do not know," writes Mr. High, "of any other place where, if I lost my shirt, I would be likely so soon to be given another, or in which I could drum up less support for a movement to underwrite my shirt bill on a permanent basis. Times and conditions being what they are, that is too bad. It leaves the south's status quo about where it was. But it leaves the southerner at least a notch or two above the evils which he has not remedied."

Mr. High points out how much better living is in the south, at much less cost, than in many other sections, and thoroughly refutes charges of exploitation of working groups by their employers. He visited many typical southern textile mill villages in the course of his survey and found employment and living conditions far better than among textile workers of the

The Saturday Evening Post has a circulation each week that averages more than 3,000,-000. Its influence is acknowledged by everyone. It is noted for the reliability and conservatism of its articles, a conservatism that adds tremendously to their effect upon public

Such a reasonable and fair discussion of the south as this by Mr. High in a publication that stands at the top of its field, will arouse the appreciation of all southerners who, rightly or wrongly, love the south and take pride in that very conservatism that ofttimes arouses the criticism, based upon envy, of constitutionally dissatisfied radicals.

THE DAIRY AMENDMENTS

There is every indication that, unless the so-called "dairy amendments" are stricken from the senate and house farm bills by the conference committee now striving to reconcile differences between the two, the southern delegations in congress will vote against the farm bill as a whole.

If they do, the charge of "sectionalism" cannot be truthfully made. It is not sectionalism when men rise to defend their own people against palpable injustice. The only sectionalism charge which could possibly hold water in this instance, must be leveled against the midwestern dairy states which, in their greed, are striving to shackle the southern farmer and hold him forever as an economic serf to the dairy, poultry and livestock interests of the west.

The two amendments, sponsored in the senate by Senator McNary, Republican, of Oregon, and in the house by Representative Boileau, Progressive, of Wisconsin, would withhold all soil conservation benefits from southern farmers who used acreage taken out of cotton production for the raising of beef or dairy cattle, hogs or for poultry, or for growing any feeds for them.

Thus all initiative, all hopes for better farm conditions by diversification of products, would be taken from the southern farmer by federal fiat. He would be restricted as to the amount of cotton he could raise and forbidden to substitute for the unplanted cotton, practically every other farm crop suitable to this section. He would be compelled either to let his former cotton acres lie idle or turn them into woodland for the growing of pine. The argument advanced by the proponents of the two amendments is that they are designed to protect dairy and poultry farmers of the west from future competition from the south. In other words, the west would forever be the purveyor of these profitable crops and

Certainly the entire nation should not condemn, but should applaud all southern representatives in congress who have the courage to vote against any farm bill whatsoever, rather than cast their ballots in favor of such a scheme to forge new chains of economic slavery on southern agriculture.

A New Jersey genius claims to have found a means to remove shine from a blue serge suit without resigning from the public service.

The ten biggest news stories of the year have been named. Now for the scoops—headed by Stalin's victory statement twenty-four hours before the balloting.

"The universities," continues Dr. Butler sadly, "are in a state of coma." Good old coma state-we know its campus well.

THE BURGIN HOME RULE BILL

Senator Joe Burgin, of Buena Vista, has devoted a large part of his time and energy during the years he has been a valuable member of one house or the other of the Georgia general assembly to what has become known as the "Burgin home rule bill."

If ever there was a badly needed piece of legislation before the state assembly, this is it. It provides that strictly local matters may be decided by the counties themselves, thus relieving the legislature of the tremendous burden of "local bills," which clutter the calendar at every session. These bills are of absolutely no interest, 99 times out of 100, to anyone save the citizens of the county concerned. They are passed automatically when the representatives from that particular county agree and request their enactment.

The Burgin bill has been passed numerous times by either the senate or the house, but so far has never reached final enactment through the approval of both houses during the same

At this session, it has been overwhelmingly approved by the senate and is now awaiting action by the house.

Passage of this bill would not only result in great savings to the taxpayers of the state, but it would double the time available for legislative discussion and action on bills of statewide interest. It would do away with a large part of the confusion which now makes the legislative burden so heavy and it would simplify the affairs of each individual county.

These "local bills" are not properly matters for the concern of the general assembly. This is proven by the fact that the assembly, even now, devotes no concern to them, merely putting them through the automatic routine which pushes them on to passage with but few knowing their content except the members from the particular county affected.

PLANNING FOR THE SOUTHEAST

On Tuesday and Wednesday next the third Southeastern Planning Conference will be held in Atlanta. Representatives from six states will attend, as well as officials of other planning agencies, state and federal. Leaders in the field of planning from all over the nation are on the program as speakers.

The potentiality for future good in such a conference is unlimited. The southeast today, in many respects, stands on the threshold of a tremendous expansion in industrial, agricultural and other activities. With new industries turning toward this section almost daily, with the rapidly expanding paper pulp industry, it is vitally important that the southeast plan its future growth today. Tomorrow, when the looming developments are accomplished fact, may be too late. The southeast must plan now to avoid mistakes that older and more fully developed sections made in the past and which they now wish, in vain, could be un-

In the paper pulp field alone there is urgent need for a full understanding of the present and future forest resources of the section. The National Forest Service, with the co-operation of state and other forest interests, is now engaged in a complete survey of forest resources in the south. When that survey is completed the information will be invaluable, if it is used. Proper usage of the survey facts will result in strict regulation of forest harvesting, will prohibit the crime of "clear cutting." and will safeguard the timberlands as a constantly growing source of permanent wea future generations.

In other lines, planning is equally important.

Thus the tremendously vital significance of the planning conference to be held in Atlanta is partly realized. From the deliberations that take place here, may come plans that will mean prosperity undreamed for the southeast of the years to come.

RADIO DIPLOMACY

(From the Baltimore Sun.)
The Near East and to a lesser extent northern Africa have for a year or more been deluged with pro-Italian propaganda, most of it coming over the radio. In part the propaganda is addressed to the French colonies, but in far greater measure it seeks to reach the natives in the British posses-

Pro-Italian agitation is not, of course, confined to the radio. Native publicists have been subsidized to write articles favorable to Rome. Italian teachers have somehow found employment in native schools, where they are, according to the accounts of neutral observers, ardently working for their country's cause. Recently Arab terrorist gangs operating in Palestine have been discovered to be drawing "monthly salaries from a myste-rious source." The same dispatch from Jerusalem that told of this discovery also declared that the disturbed conditions in Palestine "are no longer the result of an existing Arab-Jewish problem but rather are due chiefly to an organized campaign by Mussolini against Great Britain." The British government has for months been seeking to halt this campaign, but it has been working quietly through diplomatic channels, for it has not wanted to make an international issue out of the matter. The word now comes from London that the British are prepared to discard this method as useless and have decided to fight with fire. Soon after the first of the year, as Mr. Paul Ward pointed out the other day in a dispatch from London, the British Broadcasting Corporation will initiate a series of "news" and "educational" programs in Arabic, Portuguese and Spanish. Officially it is denied that these programs will contain anything that can be regarded as propaganda. Yet it is admitted that their purse is to offset the Italian radio propaganda. This business of conducting diplomacy wireless is not especially new. In the last decade or so the radio has, in Europe at least, become one of the chief instruments of diplomacy, par-ticularly among the totalitarian states. It is yet to be seen, however, whether this method is superior to old-fashioned diplomacy in dealing with international problems.

Third Term Sentiment Declines, FAIR ENOUGH The Honest Light of Day 'America Speaks' Poll Discloses

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Although The reply was overwhelmingly President Roosevelt's popularity, as measured by American Institute of Public Opinion surveys, is now approximately the same as it was when he was re-elected, the number of persons who favor a third term for Roosevelt has declined that the public is not in favor of budget balancing. During the last year the Institute has repeatedly with the property with the property of t sharply. Whereas 37 per cent of voters polled in July, 1937, said they would like to see Roosevelt run again, the figure has dropped to 33 per cent today.

The July survey, as revealed in an "America Speaks" release, found a fair-sized majority of Democrats-57 per cent-indorsing a third term. But today that majority has shrunk to a bare 51 per cent. This means that any third term movement at the present time would run the risk of oppo-sition from nearly half of the 27,-000,000 who voted for Roosevelt

Republicans polled by the Institute are almost unanimously against a third term, the vote being 96 per cent "no" to 4 per cent "yes." This solid G. O. P. disapproval, when added to the opposition of a good-sized block of Democrats, clearly indicates the difficulties the President will face if he should change his mind and

President Roosevelt's statement this week that the budget will not be balanced comes as no surprise to a majority of Americans. If, then, the news printed by reputable papers is an unb report of available facts, why is it that two persons of appropriately equal intelligence, having read the same news from same source, still hold opposite opinions concerning the even same source, still hold opposite opinions concerning the even same source, still hold opposite opinions concerning the ever situation reported?

The explanation is deep-rooted in human nature. Uncle Absalom used to say that he believed everything in Bible, yet when some scoffer pointed to a passage that disag with something he had said, he would answer: "That isn't of the inspired writing; some translator inserted that."

So the ardent partisan in some matter of controversy, rea news reports that, if considered true, would make his position tenable, saves his opinion by refusing to accept the evidence.

Affable, but noticeably nervous at the outset, he read a prepared statement telling how the recession hit General Motors, causing a devastating drop in sales in December. Then he sat back to answer questions, most of them relating to layoffs and the business outlook. Later he discussed the situation with President Roosevelt. "Naturally, I don't like to lay men off," he told the committee.

"We don't make any money laying people off." And again: "It is better to curtail than to work off inventories through reduced prices."

Of the business outlook:
"I believe this is only a temporary recession. I have said so all along. I look for recovery and we are making our plans accord-

Congress Records Resolution Against Laws Detrimental to Southern Growers.

OPPOSED BY STATE

A resolution of the Georgia legislature urging the United States congress to repeal tax laws detrimental to the growing of cottonseed and peanuts, which was sponsored by Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, has been read into the Congressional Record, it was announced vesterday.

The paper points out that federal statutes place special taxes and special licenses on margarine and shortenings, which tend to restrict the use of cottonseed and peanut oils.

Repeal of the discriminatory laws, Haden asserted yesterday, would mean great benefit to the southern grower of cotton and peanuts.

Copies of the resolution were sent to both the United States house and senate and to all the members of the Georgia delegaion. They were urged by the vote of the state legislature to aid in abolishing the special taxes and licenses from the federal statute Haden declared the statutes vere the result of the work of the northwestern milk lobby which has succeeded in inserting a clause in the pending farm bill which would prohibit southern farmers who take advantage of federal help from growing dairy products.

MY DAY

By Eleanor

NEW YORK CITY, Wednesday.—We had our annual birthday party for the staff of Todhunter School last evening. It was a very jolly party. The birthday cake which I had sent up from Washington arrived in perfect condition and furnished much merriment because of the silly little things to be found in it. The wishbone fell to me, and so I had the opportunity make a wish for the future of the school. No matter how old we are, we always enjoy making wishes and have a childish trust that making wishes and have a childish trust that perhaps they will come true. I imagine it is only this eternal optimism and faith in the fu-ture which makes it possible for a great many people to go on from day to day. When things happen which seem to have no sense or meaning, most people can bolster up their hope by faith taht the Lord knows best and has some hidden plan. Those who have less religious security, fall back on the optimism inherent in human nature which makes people feel the future will be better than the past, no matter how often they have been disillusioned.

I was sent a little book the other day called "Quiet Corner" by Patience Strong. In it I find the following quotation: "Do not heed the world, its taunts and jeers—lift your eyes and face the coming years—all great things are bought with human tears—so dream again." Eternal optimism makes it possible to dream at all, but how thankgul we can be that this power was given to us poor

I did not go to the theater with our party last night because they went to see "Susan and God," which I had already seen. Also, I had been warned a wisdom tooth would probably give me a good deal of pain after I had parted with it.

This, however, did not happen, so I picked up a friend after dinner who spent an hour with me. We talked at some length of the death in Spain of the Associated Press correspondent, Eddie Neil. I remember him as a charming, very much alive, human being. To his friends his loss is a stunning blow, for he was very popular and very much beloved.

It seems a waste, to me, for the sake of getting more colorful news, to send these men, who are not in any way concerned with the war which is going on the principles at stake, into such positions of danger. Three men, two Americans and an Englishman, have died, and with apparent pride a formal announcement is made to the effect that we should realize what dangers correspondents go

To be sure, these men not only go willingly, but often are anxious for the assignment. Personally, I would prefer to have those three men alive and a little less accurate and colorful news, and I am quite sure the majority of the people in the United States feel the same way If men must die, let it be for their own convic-tions, not because they are sent out so we may read or see something more startling in our newspapers and newsreels.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6 .- "I was directing 'Sing, Baby Sing,' " said Director Sidney Lanfield over Born 38 years 3go in Chicago.

Later I heard that Normand Taurog would direct the picture. I condoled with him on his bad luck.

"A few days later, Darryl Za-nuck called me into his office and gave me a thick script. 'Your next picture,' he said. 'You know -with Sonja Henie.' I rolled on the floor in pure anguish. But to cut a long misery short, 'One in a Million' made more money for Twentieth Century-Fox than other picture of the yearwith the exception of Miss Henie's next picture, 'Thin Ice' ' (Also directed by Lanfield.)

The ace megaphonist has a simple explanation for La Henie's astounding screen success.

"Honesty. People like honesty.
Sonja has it—also Shirley Temple. Sonja is not a great actress. I doubt whether she has ever feit anything very strongly in her life -but she is honest, hard-working has a wonderful smile. And, of course, she can skate.

Other newcomers guided to success by Lanfield include Walter Winchell, Ben Bernie and the Ritz And he recently stagemanaged a comeback for Simone

"Simone has the most terrible inferiority complex I've ever en-countered," said Lanfield. "She is terribly sensitive and thinks everyone in Hollywood has a 'down' on her. Someone warned her against me at the beginning of 'Love and Hisses, and for two weeks she refused to speak to me except to say 'yes' and 'no. Then she went on strike—aid she couldn't do the scene in which she There were 200 people on the set, and it was all very emberrassing. So I took Simone into a corner and said, 'Look here—I'm trying to make this picture a success. Why don't you?' From then on, we were the best of friends and there were no more temperamen-

According to Lanfield, Walter Winchell was like putty in his hands-in the first picture they made together, "Wake Up and Live." The atmosphere was as harmonious-but not as carefree-for their second film, "Love and tern 4688! Stitch it up once, and

Your Figure, Madame! By IDA JEAN KAIN.

HIT-OR-MISS EXERCISE MISSES!

The real problem with most figures is how to reduce in some spots and to develop in others, but exercise is now down to a science whereby you can add curves or reduce bulges, or both.

With a program of specific exercise you can reduce or develop the upper arms, strengthen the muscles which support the bust, slim the waist and hips and reduce or develop the legs. That may sound complicated, but it's all in knowing the best mechanical positions for putting these various muscle groups to work.

You may use your arms a great deal and they may still lack firm, rounded contours. Ordinary arm movements require the use of only the front muscles, and to tone the muscles on the backs of the arms you must exercise in one of two positions. The arms may be exer-cised at shoulder level or thrust outward from the shoulders. Try these positions and you can feel the pull on these muscles in the backs of the arms. Consistent exercise will reduce or develop the arms as needed and will firm and mooth the contours.

Since the pectoral muscles sup-corting the bust are inserted in upper arms, it is easy to understand why arm exercises also strengthen the muscles of the chest. You will derive a double enefit from any arm exercises in which the arms are moved in cir-cles, raised overhead or pushed gainst resistance.

In exercising, be sure posture is

At the same time you are strengthening the muscles of the bust, you may save part of your exercise time for stretching, twisting and bending movements which take inches off the waistline. To strengthen the abdominal muscles, the best position is flat on the back, knees flexed, feet flat on the

It takes exercise of an entirely different type to affect the size of the hipline. This measurement yields most readily to swinging exercises in which the leg is kicked backward to an angle of 45 degrees. The hig fleshy muscles on the back of the hips are also brought into action in outward ro-tation of the leg from the hip joint. Perhaps the easiest hip-reducing is accomplished by the massage treatment of the rolling exercises in which the flabby fat is literally

In beautifying the thighs you must do those exercises which flex the knees and move the legs in outward and inward circles. As to exercise rules . . . there are only three to remember. You should always exercise in perfect posture and should correct your posture at the beginning of each exercise. Exercise in a gym suit or other suitable clothing—don't try to exercise in a dress! You may exercise in a room that is comfortably warm, but have the windows open to provide plenty of fresh air. You use more oxygen when you are using your muscles. If you will keep these three rules in mind and take advantage of the correct exercise positions, you can change your measure-

A stay-at-home can learn a lot by stepping out now and then and going to a modern hotel. The service and comfort most modern inns today offer are always appreciated by a woman who, at home, must do for herself and her family. But many of the very things which make staying at hotels such fun for ordinary mortals are not too difficult to transfer to everyday routine in the home.

First Debutante To Announce Her Engagement

Miss Amelia Hewlett, charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Hewlett, who has the distinction of being the first member of the 1937-38 Debutante Club to announce her engagement, will soon become the bride of Tom Perkinson, of Marietta. Miss Hewlett was formally presented to Atlanta society last month at an elaborate ball at the Piedmont Driving Club. Blue-eyed and dark-haired, she is of the Irish type of vivacious beauty and possesses a sincerity and personal charm that have won her a host of friends and admirers. Miss Hewlett has won scholastic honors wherever she has attended school and has always been a popular member in any gathering of the young social contingent. Her likeness was sketched by Grace Scarboro from a photograph by Bascom Biggers.

Elmer Lampe Is Seen as New Athletic Director at Georgie

(Editor's Note: Break o' Day is written today by Jack Troy, acting sports editor of The Constitution, pinch-hitting for Ralph McGill.)

The Santa Anita race track in southern California, like many beautiful things, is treacherous.

There could hardly be a more beautiful setting for a race track, nestling as it does in the San Gabriel valley at the foothills of the majestic Sierra Madre mountains, whose snowcapped peaks are brilliant sentinels towering in the distance.

And when the sun goes down, a purple haze en-shrouds the mountains and brings on a strange urge to write a piece entitled "The Parade of the Purple Moun-

The track's infield, planted in brilliant yellow sun-flowers and with multi-colored flowers and shrubs lining the rail, makes the picture complete. It is a fascinating

And yet, as said, like many beautiful things, Santa Anita, named after Lucky Baldwin's great upset race horse of another era, is treacherous. And deadly. It is like a great slumbering monster lying in wait for its victims.

THE "TAKE" IS TREMENDOUS.

It is really difficult to imagine the hardship worked on a community and its merchants until one sees the actual "take" at such a track put down in cold black and white figures.

For instance, there was one day at Santa Anita when $10,000,000 went through the machines. And it is conservatively estimated that in a 60-day program, the wagering will amount to a cool $50,000,000.

As rich a community as embraces Pasadena, Los Angeles and Hollywood feels such a financial outpouring tremendously. And especially do the merchants take it

In fact, there is a growing undercurrent of dissension on the coast. The merchants firmly believe that, within a few more years of such wagering, they will be ruined. Little of the money is spent in trade.

GEORGIA IS ALTOGETHER SMART. Merchants of Georgia can thank a shrewd legislature that horse racing is not legalized. This business of following the horses is a drug that is at once insidious and deadly. The only way a community possibly could be benefited would be for people to have to come from long distances to attend the meetings. This may be true in Florida. But Florida is, of course, a resort state.

And the state gets a big chunk of the "take." But even in such an event, it is doubted if the merchants there benefit as much from horse racing as they would from the normal influx of visitors. They're going to spend their money anyway. It is something Georgia can very well do without.

THERE'S DISSENSION IN BOWL, TOO. -'After all these years, the Pacific conference and Rose Bowl officials are becoming victims of that green-eyed monster

It is common talk on the coast that the conference is fed up with a third party and wants to take over the bowl game and shift it to the Coliseum in Los Angeles. The idea behind it all seems to be that the conference would run the annual New Year's Day classic and do away with that extra one-third division of the receipts.

Should such a thing come to pass, it is probable that the annual Tournament of Roses parade would either be discontinued or become a spectacle of considerably less beauty. Much of the glamour and prestige would be removed. And the Rose ild become just another bowl game.

It is to be hoped that such a thing never happens. Because, once seen, the parade and game become in-separable parts of the great American scheme of foot-ball. It is a tremendous thing.

The committee made a terrific mistake this time in allowing ing admission to old patrons of the classic. But this item may be ironed out in time to save one of America's greatest sporting spectacles.

The Monroe Aggies, last year's champs, will not see action tonight as they drew a bye in the first record of rich.

HILL'S ROMANTIC STORY.

Howard Hill, who left Auburn to become the champion against the Typists in their game archer of the world, is the central figure in a romantic story that many kids dream about.

Hill, who will appear in the picture, "Robin Hood," for Warner Brothers, was a star end at Auburn. He graduated in 1922. That was Mike Donahue's last year there.

Well, Hill was interested in archery then, but he had to practice on the sly because the boys were wont to refer to him as Robin Hood or Cupid.

Since that time, the husky black-haired Alabama boy has

And he says, "I'm not going to die. I want to shoot lions, tigers and other wild animals in Africa before the end of my time. I'm going to do that some day, using only bow and

Hill was delighted to see some Alabama people at Pasadena. Pat Moulton, of Mobile, who also played a fine end for Auburn no farther back than 1927, was along on the trip as a writer, and he and Hill had a very pleasant time recalling days at the loveliest village.

THE COCK-EYED GAME.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American awspaper Alliance, Inc.)
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—Usually correspondents want to know what is the fastest game, the hardest game, the toughest game. But here is a correspondent who would like to be informed about the most cockeyed game in sport. This is getting on the more sensible side. Football is a swell runner-up—but golf still leads.

In these California open tournaments, I can hear the wail of star pros who hit all greens in par and get around in 74—against others who hit only 12 greens in par and get around in 68 or 69—because they can hum the dulcet tunes the chip shot and the putter sing.

Football comparisons make a most no sense. But golf still leads. Here's an example. A little while back, "Hi" Phillips—the famous columnist who can take his golf on either the serious or the light side—was playing with Joe Turn-esa and what might technically be esa and what might technically be called a pair of dubs or duffers. "Hi" suggested a new game where each player had to hit a trap before he could qualify to putt.

Taking serious and deadly aim at each trap, Turnesa had a rough time hitting one and the dubs had even more trouble. They had had no trouble finding all the traps when aiming at the greens. But, in aiming at the traps, they were hitting the greens

Recalling Fred Merkle.

Fred Merkle, who happened to collect most of his fame from the most famous of the bonehead plays—against the Cubs in 1908—happens to be one of the smartest baseball players I've ever known. Smart, at least, off the field—and not so dumb on the field. In not stepping on second base, Fred merely happened to step into a common mistake other ball play-ers had been making before—but Fred had the hard luck to step into his mistake under the wrong rific difference—don't ever forget

'No More Letters Tonight,' Says Rickey

Branch Rickey, vice president and gen-eral manager of the St. Louis Cardinals' farflung farm system, spent the night in Atlanta. He drove here from Columbus, Ga., where he completed plans for a fine lighting plant. Rickey, on his annual mid-winter tour of farm clubs, leaves early this morn-ing for Asheville. In the picture above, Rickey, center, tells his aides, Andrew French. right, and Arthur Fetzner, "no more letters tonight." Rickey spent a busy evening here catching up with correspondence and keeping his finger on the vast Cardinal holdings. In the story below he praises Atlanta as a baseball town and Earl Mann as an outstanding executive.

By JACK TROY.

The National league, like a stubborn old mule, needs to have a fire built under it—and the St. Louis Cardinals may have something to do about the matter—Branch Rickey, generalissimo of the far-flung baseball chain, told The Constitution last night.

Rickey, one of baseball's smartest minds, paused in Atlanta to spend the night. He is on his annual midwinter tour of Cardinal properties the country over.

Leaving early this morning, Rickey will go to Asheville, Portsmouth and other points where the Cardinals operate baseball farms. "I have just come from Colum-bus, Ga.," Rickey said. "We are tem going to install lights there for play during the coming season. My business on the trip mainly is the top single g study of personnel, leases, parks count of 150.

IDEA OF PROBLEM. Here is a slight idea as to the problem facing the committee. Should Morgan be named head coach-he would handle the line -would Joel Hunt be satisfied to become backfield coach? And then would Lampe be only ath-letic director with such a coaching record as he has compiled? Could Lampe be athletic director and coach, say, the ends? It doesn't sound very plausible. Ath-letic directors seldom do that, Maybe Lampe will become ath-letic director and head coach. And also coach of the basketball team Or maybe Joel Hunt will become head coach and Morgan line coach And still there isn't any provision left for Butler unless he become one of the assistants or, say, end coach.

Oh, there are many, many angles. And nothing definite can be known until the five-man committee reports to the 19-man governing board, the final judge, at some date next week.

It would seem, however, that Dell Morgan is running a strong race for the head coach's job. He is well qualified. At any rate, selection of a head coach to succeed Harry Mehre is a real task for even a committee and apparently the leader in the a real task for even a committee field for the head-coaching job, so capable as the one at work on has been asked to remain over, as the matter. 803 313 NEW YORK, Jan. 6 .- (AP)long-dormant rails puffed the stock market into a raily today that lifted many leaders 1 to 4 points and a few much more.

Dealings were comparation. Dealings were comparatively slow until the final hour when a brief buying rush put the ticker tape a minute behind. Profit realizing was in evidence at the finish and extreme advances were shaded in many cases on the final lap.

Touching off the recovery sprint, brokers said, was the friendly gesture of the administration in which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with the later provisional approval of the ICC, agreed to lend the Baltimore & Ohio more than $8,000,000 to pull the road out of a hole. Wall Street took this to mean the government intends to come to the assistance of shaky carriers pending final action on increased freight rates and a pick-up in traffic which will enable them to proceed under their own steam.

Most B. & O. bonds did a quick comeback after their retreat yesterday and the road's stocks were strong

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—The strength evident in Thursday's market gives encouragement that the 130 level of the Dow-Jones Industrials which has been a stumbling block on two occasions, may be bettered in the near future.

BEER & CO.—In completing its correction in one'day the list has given a good account of itself. Apparently, the technical position remains such that unfaworable news is ignored and faworable developments quickly reflected in higher prices. A test of the overhead resistance at the 130 level of the industrial averages appears in the offing.

THOMSON & McKINNON—While the low volume of transactions Thursday de-tracted from the contractions of the contraction of the contractions of the contraction of the contractio e offing.

McKINNON—While the f transactions Thursday dehe significance of the rally, nt in general sentiment was an improvement in general sentiment was cividenced in the market.

FENNER & BEANE—The possibility of a penetration of the upper resistance levels in a reasonable time, are not inconsiderable and nearby price easiness will be used to complete desired positions, particularly in issues likely to prove responsive to an intensification of inflationary sentiment.

COURTS CO.—Until there is a greater disposition to offer cotton more freely by the farmer, we feel that supplies will prove inadequate to satisfy the steadily improving demand and that prices will gradually work higher.

BER CO.—We continue to favor purchases, especially on any moderate recessions. purchases, especially on any moderate recessions.

THOMSON & McKINNON-Under present tenor of markets, generally we believe that the advance in cotton will continue.

ent tenor of markets, generally we believe that the advance in cotton will continue.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for the price to advance to around the loan level before the upward movement spends its force.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—Market acts as if it still wants to continue the advance for the time being at least.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—Practically the whole surplus of both Argentine and Australia will be available now for export and we look for largely increased shipments from the Northern Hemisphere. Doubt whether Liverpool, where the advance started, will show the same strength as supplies from these countries become available.

BEER & CO.—We are of the opinion that the rally will not hold and prefer sales at current levels.

THOMSON & MCKINNON—We have consistently held to the view that when demand expanded, the real firmness of the commercial position with its limited supply of high grade wheat would be felt in the price structure. The current advance is simply a reflection of this situation and it may be expected to extend as absorption of supplies continues.

FENNER & BEANE—We think world conditions warrant still higher prices.

COTTONSEED OIL OPINIONS.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—The cottonseed oil futures market on the New York Produce Exchange opened around
Wednesday's close with small volume.

After the opening there was some commission house buying, with locals selling.

During the afternoon there was heavy commission buying due to strength of allied markets and this strength was thought to be on talk of inflation.

relationship between the present market price of the stock and its earnings. The stock is selling on this basis between seven and eight times carnings per share. That ought to make it a good investment. The trouble is that the market price is determined not by what has happened in the past, but by what the buyers and sellers think is likely to happen in the future. So we come back, once more, to the matter of confidence.

In the speculative bond market, railroad issues play an even larger part and the fluctuations in the bonds are much more violent than those in the stocks. The Erie and the Baltimore & Ohio episodes demonstrated that. Moreover, there are most institutional holders of railroad stocks. If anything can restore, not necessarily confidence in the railroad outlook, but something akin to it, it would have a stimulating effect on all securities. In the speculative bond market,

FOR SEWER SYSTEM ARE TO BE STARTED

Work on Howell Mill and Federal Prison Lines Will Begin Monday.

Construction of three new units in Atlanta's municipal sewer systcm will start within the next two weeks. L. B. Barrett, area engineer for the Works Progress Administration, announced yesterday

Work on two of the units, the Howell Mill and federal prison sewers, will start Monday, Barrett said. Involving an expenditure of approximately $690,000, the three projects will employ 1,500 people, it was said.

The Howell Mill unit, crossing Northside drive and intersecting the Peachtree creek line, will be 9,837 feet in length and will be constructed at a total cost of $3,-100. Approximately 200 men will be employed on this project, Barrett said. Employing 275 men, the federal prison unit will be 17,000 feet in length and cost $76,934.

Construction on the largest of the three units, the Proctor Creek line in the northwestern section of the city, will get under way in about two weeks, the engineer said. It will cost $610,000 and employ 1,000 people. The line will be 33,600 feet in length with two tunnels, one 790 feet long and the other 4,300 feet.
